

Stacey Brodbar

Head of Investor Relations and FP&A

Stacey Brodbar is head of investor relations and FP&A for Verisk. She serves as the company's liaison to the investor community, as well as guides internal forecasting, budgeting, and planning processes.

In her role, Stacey advises Verisk executives on key investor relations initiatives and nurtures the company's relationships with sell-side and buy-side analysts and investors worldwide. She also ensures the company's financial performance aligns with its strategic objective of delivering predictable and consistent growth and driving long-term shareholder value. Having been both a buy-side and sell-side analyst, Stacey has a uniquely comprehensive perspective on how investors and analysts think, and she brings that investor mindset to Verisk's internal financial processes.

Before joining Verisk in 2018, Stacey was a senior vice president at the global asset management firm AllianceBernstein, where she covered the consumer discretionary sector for the company's concentrated growth portfolio.

Prior to that, she was a vice president at the investment banking firm Credit Suisse, where she published sell-side research covering the restaurant sector. She started her Wall Street career as an investment banking analyst at PaineWebber.

Stacey holds an MBA from the Columbia Business School and a BA from Duke University in history. She's a member of Duke's Alumni Admission Advisory Committee.
