

Do you have the right tools to compete?

Digital acceleration, rising costs, and competitive pressures are changing the claims landscape. Third-party administrators need data, insights, and automation to keep pace.

TPAs face unique challenges and mounting competitive pressures

Retaining clients and reducing churn rate is challenging in a highly competitive environment.

Digital acceleration is increasing pressure for more workflow automation.

Containing operational costs and client expenses is difficult with rising claim severity and fraud.

Most TPAs don't have the resources, data, or analytic capabilities to meet rising expectations.

Navigating these challenges requires the right set of automated solutions. But where do you start?

Selecting the right claim solutions is difficult

It can be confusing to decide which solutions you need to improve claims processes and deliver results for clients.

Purchasing products à la carte from various vendors complicates billing because of multiple contract periods and different pricing models.

Choosing a startup vendor can be challenging to get contracts through procurement.

The best approach to contain costs, streamline purchasing, and realize consistent claim outcomes is to turn to a single source of essential claims analytic capabilities.
