

Essential risk management information for better underwriting and client retention

A powerful resource combination

Engineering and Safety Service (E&S™) is a leader in technical, legislative, and regulatory information for risk management and loss control. No other provider offers such a powerful combination of risk control information, educational resources, and personalized consultation.

24/7 access to critical risk management information — and much more

The E&S Risk Management Information database gives you access to more than 2,000 reports to help you and your clients identify, assess, and control risk:

- Technical Reports provide information on specific types of hazards.
- Business Link Reports address risks for specific types of businesses.
- News Reports keep you up to date on emerging issues.

Exceptional client education

Our database includes more than 400 Client Handouts you can download and personalize for your customers. They are valuable resources to help educate your clients about risk control.

Ask us anything

Our Basic and Enterprise clients have access to a singular resource: E&S loss control and risk management subject experts. If you subscribe at this level, you have full access to personalized risk management consultation.

A complete package of risk management resources

Loss control laws and regulations

The E&S Legislation – Loss Control Services database provides a library of key state compliance requirements, including minimum qualifications for those providing loss control services within a state and timely alerts on the latest proposed laws and regulations affecting your operations.

Training and education

E&S training can help you learn new skills and maintain your professional certifications. Self-paced instruction is available through our Technical Achievement Program (TAP) and Modular Training Solutions (MTS). E&S staff can also deliver web seminars or on-site training at events you sponsor.

Surveys and annual conference

E&S performs periodic benchmarking surveys, represents customers in national standards activities, and provides networking opportunities for senior-level loss control experts at our annual Loss Control Executive Forum.

Levels of participation

You can choose one of three annual subscription options.

Enterprise subscription is the premier level of E&S services, information, and consultation. In addition to your company personnel having access to all E&S resources and consultation services, your business partners and policyholders can access the E&S Risk Management Information database through your secure portal. Basic subscription includes all E&S information services as well as consultation for your company personnel. ISO Participation PlusSM provides a limited number of users access to E&S information services.
